Details Description: The CSL PowerLine is a 5 pin input cable designed to be used with the Tronix and CSL PowerLine analog power supplies, which convert 12-24VDC power to digital signals for use with CSL pedals and software. Connection of the 5 pins to the PowerLine is accomplished with a jumper pack that allows a one-time installation to be used with the Tronix and CSL PowerLine. This pack is supplied with the PowerLine and is installed by the user. Early non-adherence in psychiatric inpatients: a comparison of two definitions. This study was aimed at investigating the prevalence of non-adherence to prescribed medications at admission and the characteristics of early non-adherence in psychiatric inpatients. During the period 1 July 2010 to 31 October 2011, we enrolled inpatients consecutively referred to the Psychiatry Department of a general hospital. The primary outcome measure was the prevalence of non-adherence at admission. Non-adherence was defined according to two criteria: either "adherence" was defined as "no missed doses of prescribed medication" or "adherence" was defined as "excessive doses taken or no dose taken". The criteria were compared and contrasted to two "adherence-targeted" characteristics: number of days of hospitalization and drug-related problems (DRPs). Overall, 320 patients were recruited. Among them, 87.5% of patients were adherent, 9.4% early non-adherent, and 3.1% late non-adherent. Patients in the "early non-adherent" group were significantly older than the other two groups, and presented more DRPs. The adjusted OR (95% CI) of early non-adherence for DRPs was 4.62 (1.94-11.0). The prevalence of non-adherence was high. Although early non-adherence appears to be associated with DRPs, the significant independent risk factor for early non-adherence was drug-related problems. Patients who were identified as early non-adherent were more likely to present with drug-related problems and be older. Air pollution has been shown to be associated with multiple cardiovascular diseases and it is hypothesized that PM may exert its effects by modulating inflammation. We are testing the hypothesis that PM exposure alters expression of genes that are associated with inflammatory response. PM samples were collected from three US cities. Total nucleic acids were isolated and enriched for mRNA. RNA-seq analysis was used to study the gene expression profiles. The findings suggest that
